

THE ABRASION RESISTANCE TEST

The abrasion resistance test has been subject of one of the most controversial proposals.

Within the WG9 standards committee, there were initially discussions on running two impact abrasion test methods:

- The existing Cambridge-type abrasion machine (CAM) specified in EN 13595-2:2002;
- An updated and amended version of the Darmstadt machine (DAM).